Ms. Beatrice Fihn, the Executive Director of the International Campaign to Abolish Nuclear Weapons (ICAN), chose Japan as the destination of her first trip overseas since ICAN received the 2017 Nobel Peace Prize. She visited the two A-bombed cities of Nagasaki and Hiroshima as well as Tokyo. After visiting Nagasaki where she made public lectures, Ms. Fihn visited Hiroshima. In addition to touring the Peace Memorial Museum and listening to an eyewitness testimony by a hibakusha, she attended a public forum that featured open conversation between Ms. Fihn and Japanese youngsters. She made a speech under the title “We Shall Not Repeat the Evil: How Japan Can Lead us Towards a Nuclear Free World,” in which she stressed that what happened to Hiroshima and Nagasaki must not be forgotten and called on people to work together to make sure that there are no more hibakusha. The forum was attended by about 340 people, many of whom were high school and college students. Everyone seemed inspired by the dialogue with Ms. Fihn.

In Tokyo, Ms. Fihn participated in a debate with Japanese parliamentarians as well as a public symposium.

In its Action Plan for the year 2020 adopted at the General Conference last year, Mayors for Peace refers to ICAN as one of the organizations with which we would like to build a network. Mayors for Peace intends to further promote collaboration with ICAN to achieve our common goal of abolishing nuclear weapons.

The video of the public forum in Hiroshima will be posted on the Mayors for Peace website soon.
Receiving an Intern from Volgograd at the Mayors for Peace Secretariat
[December 4-20, 2017]

Mayors for Peace has conducted an internship program since 2014, inviting staff from member cities to the Mayors for Peace Secretariat in Hiroshima City and having them engage in peace-related Secretariat-related work. This program was established with the aim of improving the international functions of the Secretariat. It is hoped that the experience of learning about the realities of the atomic bombing in Hiroshima and sharing in the city’s wish for peace will help interns identify more personally with the organization, inspiring them to contribute to its development and to peace activities in their home countries, and ultimately strengthening the network among member cities.

Ms. Elena Samigulina, from Volgograd, Russia, a Vice President and Lead City of Mayors for Peace, worked as an intern at the Mayors for Peace Secretariat from December 4 to 20. The Secretariat will have hosted two more interns from Tehran (Iran) and Granollers (Spain) by the end of March 2018.

* Signing the Mutlangen Manifesto

To mark the 30th anniversary of the INF-Treaty, a success of the peace movement, and to recall the danger this disarmament treaty is in, member mayors of the German Chapter of Mayors for Peace and representatives of the peace movement signed the Mutlangen Manifesto on December 5 2017. Mutlangen is a former deployment site of nuclear Pershing II missiles. The Mutlangen Manifesto states that disarmament treaties create security and demands to maintain the INF-Treaty and to sign and ratify the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons.

There are 37 signatories so far, including mayors, district counsellors, a pastor, and peace group representatives. The signers are looking for support from other former deployment sites and will present the Manifesto at the NPT-PrepCom in Geneva this year and in Büchel, the last nuclear deployment site in Germany.

*Public appeal for the donation of winter coats for the homeless & needy - “Coat Day”

Coat Day is an initiative led by the not for profit, community based youth committee called “Enormity”, which was founded on the North-West Coast of Tasmania in 1996. This annual appeal collects and distributes donated coats and winter woolens for the homeless and needy. Mayor Steve Martin of Devonport is the founder and mentor of “Enormity” and the Devonport City Council has been a supporter of the “Coat Day” initiative since 2010.

Saturday July 7th 2018 marks the twentieth anniversary of “Coat Day” and the group is hoping that this will be the year that they reach their target of collecting 100,000 coats. Only 800 more coats are needed for this goal to be achieved. The City of Devonport is requesting that members of Mayors for Peace support this initiative, either by promoting this cause, or donating to it.

“50 Cities - 50 Traces”: One World without nuclear weapons
This year marks 50 years that the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons was opened for signature. To commemorate this anniversary and increase momentum for a ban on nuclear weapons around the world, the City of Hannover, a Mayors for Peace Vice President City and the Lead City of the German Chapter, invites member cities of Mayors for Peace to host an international traveling art project titled “50 Cities - 50 Traces.” The artwork is comprised of 50 photographic panels of “traces” of human presence found in different Mayors for Peace cities. ■ “Peace News from Hiroshima” (Provided by the Hiroshima Peace Media Center)

As the new year begins, a spotlight has fallen on a particular photo. The photo was taken by Joe O’Donnell, a U.S. serviceman, shortly after the atomic bomb was dropped on the city of Nagasaki. Titled “Boy standing at a cremation site,” this image of the Nagasaki A-bombing is well known in Japan. With his dead brother on his back, the boy stands at attention, biting his lips while waiting for his brother’s body to be cremated. Pope Francis has recently instructed that copies of this photo be distributed around the world.

Reportedly, the Pope, an influential figure on the international stage, holds a strong desire for the abolition of nuclear weapons and has expressed explicit criticism of the nuclear weapon states. In fact, the Vatican has been one of the first nations to ratify the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons. The Pope’s message can be interpreted: Now is the time for us to return to the starting point of this problem and turn our eyes to the tremendous tragedy that nuclear weapons and war can produce.

2018 will surely be an important year for the effectuation of the nuclear weapons ban treaty. “Let this be the beginning of the end of nuclear weapons,” said A-bomb survivor Setsuko Thurlow at the award ceremony for the Nobel Peace Prize held last December. We must once again take these words to heart. For the treaty to enter into force, at least 50 nations must ratify it. Mayors for Peace, with its global network, will certainly play a key role in encouraging countries to ratify the treaty in the quest to attain this number. In Japan, the only country where nuclear weapons have been used in war, nearly all municipalities are members of this organization.

As the Pope encourages, we must remember the horrors of the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki and take action to advance the abolition of nuclear weapons.
